

Unique ... from Old to New ...

The beginnings of gin dates to the 17th century where the Dutch thought it wise to infuse alcohol with Juniper berries, for medicinal purposes of course!

The British troops then used this “medicine” to build some courage, which seem to have worked.

The mid 1700 saw officials attempting to knock gin on the proverbial head, but there was no keeping down of a good thing and riots resorted order and the ample consumption continued to grow.

Here at Durbanville Distillery we strive to further refine the spirit that has seen civilization through troubling time over the last 300 years. We retain the heritage of gin whilst applying modern engineering innovation and unique distillation methods to produce a smooth, soft and fresh gin.

We use the purest botanical ingredients and a method of cold distillation to retain the essence and soul of the Juniper berries.

Our gin is twice distilled with botanical infusion between distillations. No flavouring, colourant or sweeteners are added after final distillation. The result is a gin which can be enjoyed on-the-rocks or as the perfect accompaniment to your cocktail.
